Schedule your holidays in the Pousada Convento de Arraiolos, a former convent of the religious order of St. John the Evangelist, who was dedicated to helping the poor and the sick in Arraiolos. Its foundation stone was laid on August 14, 1527 - the eve of the holiday of Our Lady of the Assumption (Nossa Senhora da Assunção), a great time to come take a break.

The noble, long and comfortable room; the corner of the fireplace, one of the typical Alentejo floor fireplaces that will warm your soul and feet in the winter; the terrace in the summer, perfect for reading in the shade of the trees and escape the heat of Alentejo, the cloisters and stairs refreshing and protecting, both from the unforgiving sun as well as from the insidious cold...

Lose yourself in Arraiolos, a unique and extraordinary place where you can practice the purest of traditions from Alentejo, forgetting that all hurry, having all the time in the world. Close your eyes and turn off your tablet: in this Convento de Arraiolos Inn you will truly be able to know what rest is.

According to tradition, the Pousada is linked to Arraiolos Castle by a secret, still undiscovered
passageway.

ALENTEJO PRIDE

Between local specialties and international beverages, whether you stay in the bar or dine in the restaurant, everything you taste here will have a different flavour. Choose from several outdoor patios for dining or one of the rooms to take your drink, and discover the taste of having time to spend. When you reach the Arraiolos Inn and enter your room, you will begin your visit to the restaurant. You will find two presentations: one of the Inn and one of the typical dishes that you can sample at the restaurant.

OUT

Famous for its colorful wool carpets, hand-embroidered by generations of embroiders, Arraiolos harbours, among other treasures, a magnificent medieval castle decorated with winding alleyways and Baroque churches.

The carpet of Arraiolos is part of the most genuine Portuguese handicrafts, a subject of much prestige, present in noble houses and palaces around the country and in most Portuguese homes.

Arraiolos comes across as a compelling testimony of the culture of the Alentejo region. If the historic environment is already charming, wait until we talk about the food and taste the sweets of "mouth watering" monastic confectionery.

TO DO

The best of Alentejo region lies in its incredible variety of things to do. One feels as if the hours became longer and had all the time to do what one likes best: hunting (rabbits, hares, turtledoves and pigeons), canoeing, biking, visits to wine cellars and wine-tasting or kart driving at the Évora Kartodrome.

The festivities of Arraiolos bring back memories of past experiences, while continuing to add animation to the different counties.

TO SEE

Before leaving Arraiolos, make sure you do not miss visiting the monumental “Fonte da Pedra” (Stone Fountain), Arraiolos Castle (14th century), the Salvador Church (16th century) and the Misericórdia Church (Baroque).

Afterwards, visit the nearby villages – Estremoz, Évora and Santana do Campo – and discover the bucolic landscape of endless olive groves, an invitation to enjoy picnics and walks with the family to discover the secrets of the Alentejo plain.
