Staying at the Monastery of Santa Marinha Inn, in Guimarães will give you more than a few days of rest: a live history lesson with every step. Located on the slopes of Monte da Penha, this former monastery given by Queen Mafalda - wife of D. Afonso Henriques - to the Order of the Canons of St. Augustine in the 12th century, is a building that inspires admiration and imparts wisdom through every door, window and stonework.

Climb the stairs and go through the impressive Great Hall, the old library, with its imposing ceiling oak wood, coffered, and let your footsteps echo through the ages, as echoed by the time of classes in the monastery. Go through the amazing chapter room, with an identical ceiling and lined with Johannine tiles placed in the 18th century, representing the elements and the life of the time and which was the only room open to the outside in all the monastery. If you stay in the old wing, go into the corridor, where the cells were - which were converted to give place to the room where you'll rest - and let yourself be dazzled by the amount of space and by the ascetic feeling that pervades it.

This space, winner of the National Prize for Architecture in 1985, reveals all the care that the architect Fernando Távora had in following the original design and preserving most of the monastery's features.

Lovely gardens,
among the best of Portugal.

Fall asleep in a Monastery of
the age of Portugal,
Frei Jerónimo Balcony.

Worth of note are the tile
panels of the 18th century,
the Chapter Room and the Frei Jerónimo balcony
a veritable outdoor lounge
with a fountain of mountain
water at its centre, an ideal spot for a romantic tea or for reading a book.

RESTAURANT OF THE POUSADA

In the Dona Mafalda restaurant, you can make a journey through the typical flavors of the Minho and Guimarães region. You can also discover secrets about the old forms of food preservation in a structure as large as a monastery: note the numbered tiles on the floor. It was the access to three meters below the ground that made the fridge and the storeroom.

Situated within the ancient cellars, the structure of the vaulted ceilings with columns in granite and decorated with Johannine tile panels recovered from the room's corridor - where only a few of its traces remain after the fire of 1951; representing scenes from everyday life, lunches, trips, picnics and games - it's the perfect setting for a journey through the culinary delights of the area.

OUT

Guimarães is a medieval town, full of history and culture, widely recognized as the “Cradle of Portugal”, and a World Cultural Heritage. After the Battle of São Mamede in 1128, the population grew and was organized within the city walls and changed very little, with the exception of some buildings erected at the end of the 18th century, including churches, convents, palaces and the Largo da Misericórdia, and the large-scale urban reorganization. It was then, with the demolition of the city walls and the erection of several bridges, that everything that guests will find today evolved: the current Largo de Martins Sarmiento and Condessa do Juncal, the roads and avenues, the Alameda and the recreation of the “Colina da Fundação” (Foundation Hill). They represent an historical walk full of stories and a place that should certainly not be missed.
